Choosing the wrong career path is expensive. Unnecessary degrees and courses waste money; the wrong job wastes time.

That is why I offer your next career move masterclass

If you're an adult with ADHD considering a career change, you can't afford to miss it.

With all the challenges we have faced recently, I want as many ADHD adults to have the necessary tools and the structured, step-by-step process for career success.

Over the course of 8 weeks, in 2 modules, we will collaboratively explore the most important questions that every ADHDer should consider before making the next career move. Together, we will create a picture of your ideal job or career and the next steps.

Finding success with fractured focus can be difficult. Maybe you struggle with perfectionism or overwhelm. Or maybe you're holding onto false beliefs about your abilities. I can relate. I have ADHD, too.

CAREER COACHING with SHELL

After years as a career coach, I dedicated my practice to helping ADHD adults after my own diagnosis in 2010. Holding a master's in counseling with an emphasis on career, I have helped more than 700 clients find fulfillment in their work over my 30+ year career. I'm also trained by Richard Bolles, author of the best-selling career book of all time, What Color Is Your Parachute?

Before you create your next resume, make sure you are clear and focused on your desired direction - learn the recipe that will "wow" employers and get you through to the right folks.

What You'll Learn:

From Confusion to Clarity 4 weeks

- Identifying the Skills and Traits that are most important to use in your work
- Dive deep into your story and watch your career themes emerge
- Begin the Career Clarifier, and identify:
 - Ideal working conditions and best places to live
 - Personalities at work: what type of people you work best with
 - Salary requirements/rewards and benefits
 - Your Industries of Fascination: your career language
 - Your Life Purpose as it pertains to the work you do

Having recently been laid off, I didn't know what my next steps were. The process has been so much more than finding a new job, but reclaiming those strengths and skills I forgot I had. Shell has been an encourager and cheerleader and even given me an occasional kick in the butt when I needed it. I believe Shell has helped me find the path to finally find the career I was born to do and can do the same for you.
